Boushehr — A land of the sea and high-quality seafood.

Bushehr Province is located in southern Iran, along the coast of the Persian Gulf. Thanks to its advantageous coastal location, favorable climate, and extensive development of fisheries and aquaculture, the region is one of Iran's most important centers for the production of marine products.

From farm to market — a unified chain of consistent quality.

The combination of high production capacity—featuring numerous ponds, a modern processing plant, fully equipped cold storage and warehousing facilities, as well as administrative and support infrastructure—transforms Marjan Nour Bushehr into a facility with extensive capabilities for the production, processing, storage, and supply of aquaculture products.

Capacity, Infrastructure, and Quality in the Heart of the Persian Gulf

Marjan Nour Bushehr boasts extensive shrimp farms, numerous ponds, and modern infrastructure for production and storage. This gives the enterprise significant aquaculture production potential in southern Iran.

The complex's location in Bushehr Province, on the Persian Gulf coast, provides access to one of Iran's key maritime and aquaculture regions, creating favorable conditions for the production and supply of high-quality seafood.

Industrial Production Capacity

The complex comprises numerous farms and ponds, with an estimated annual production capacity of approximately 12,500 tons of shrimp. The farm layout is structured so that each farm includes eight grow-out ponds; depending on rearing conditions and production processes, each pond has a capacity of approximately 100 tons of shrimp.

This scale of production—combined with efficient management of the rearing process and constant monitoring of water quality, feed, and production parameters—enables the delivery of stable, predictable supplies to major domestic and export markets.

A Modern Production Complex: Preserving Quality from Farm to Market

One of Marjan Nour Bushehr's key advantages is its modern, fully equipped production facility, designed for processing and preparing products in accordance with quality standards and under controlled conditions.

The complex also features state-of-the-art refrigeration and storage facilities, ensuring optimal storage conditions for products—from the moment of receipt and processing through to shipment.

The use of modern storage infrastructure and an efficient cold chain plays a vital role in preserving the freshness, quality, and consumer attributes of the products.

In addition to production and storage areas, the complex includes a modern administrative building and a dedicated guesthouse for hosting guests and business partners, ensuring a comfortable environment for welcoming clients, company representatives, and visitors.

ABZIYAN MARJAN NOUR BOUSHEHR, understanding the diversity of taste across different markets, seeks to supply seafood products tailored to the needs of consumers and commercial clients in various markets.

The Persian Taste

In Persian cuisine, fish and shrimp hold a special place – from the southern Ghalieh Mahi (fish stew) and Bushehri shrimp, to grilled, fried, stuffed fish, and various seafood stews. The aroma of aromatic southern herbs, tamarind, warm spices, and the authentic flavor of coastal dishes have made fish and shrimp a lasting part of Iran's food culture.

The Middle Eastern & Arab Taste

In Arab markets, seafood is a significant part of the table and culinary culture. Fish and shrimp are used in various forms such as mashwi (grilled), maqli (fried), kabab, biryani, and seafood stews. From modern restaurants and luxury hotels to retail and wholesale markets, quality, size, product appearance, and ease of preparation are key factors for customers in these markets.

The Russian Taste

In the Russian market, seafood products are used in a diverse range of everyday and restaurant dishes. Fish and shrimp can be supplied as fillets, frozen products, seafood mixes, salads, soups, and various hot dishes. Continuous supply, a reliable cold chain, consistent quality, and appropriate packaging are essential requirements for a successful presence in this market.

The Eastern Taste – China

China is one of the world's most significant seafood markets, where fish and shrimp hold a prominent place in the food culture. From steamed and fried dishes to spicy seafood, soups, and various restaurant-style preparations, consumption diversity is exceptionally high. For such a market, the ability to ensure continuous supply, a variety of sizes and suitable packaging, alongside product quality and standards, is of particular importance.
